

Vaccine victims sue: Bill Gates faces trial in Holland

CORONA

Seven Dutch people who suffered vaccine damage are suing Bill Gates and people from business and politics. The trial will take place in the Netherlands in September. The accusation: those who suffered vaccine damage feel they have been misled by false statements about the new mRNA substances. They want justice.

The way the West is dealing with the coronavirus is a nuisance, and hopes for a comprehensive, necessarily tribunal-based review of these years soon have unfortunately all too often proven to be frustratingly unfounded. At least: occasionally the individual main actors and perpetrators of the coronavirus regime have to answer for their crimes. This includes not only politicians and pharmaceutical companies, but also and especially the self-proclaimed philanthropist Bill Gates, who dominated the vaccination policy of entire countries with his foundation and is one of the main donors to the World Health Organization (WHO).

Gates must now appear in court in Leeuwarden, the Netherlands, on September 18. The lawsuit was filed by seven people who had been harmed by vaccinations against the government and 16 well-known figures from business and politics. The plaintiffs accuse the defendants of having intentionally acted unlawfully by misleading the public through intentionally false statements about the corona vaccinations. Gates had initially tried to evade the summons by claiming that the Dutch court had no jurisdiction over him.

Will Gates withdraw from the affair?

The German mainstream media has not reported a word about this sensational development. The fact that there is finally a legal investigation into the Corona tragedy and its backers and that a court has even forced the universally revered Gates to appear is simply kept quiet. "These media mainly report on topics that divide gullible people and turn them against each other. A recent global example is the hostilities between population groups that are being fueled by criminal organizations and are being exacerbated by the uncontrolled admission of asylum seekers. This strategy of 'divide and rule' is being deliberately used to create social tensions and destabilize society.

The Recht Oprecht Foundation refuses to take part in this nasty game of divide and rule. The foundation is there for everyone who loves the truth," explained lawyer Oprecht from the foundation of the same name. Now it will be interesting to see how Gates manages to somehow wriggle around the court date, perhaps with the help of his powerful comrades, and if not, how he will explain or justify his Corona actions. His answers, even if they will certainly not be honest, will nevertheless allow conclusions to be drawn about the power cartel that was responsible for this crime against humanity and continues to wreak havoc.
