

How governments systematically lied about COVID vaccines

May 1, 2026 by Dr. Peter F. Mayer 5.8 minute read

It is no longer a secret: The authorities in the USA – and following suit here in Germany – deliberately downplayed the risks of the mRNA COVID vaccines from the very beginning in order to prevent vaccine skepticism.

The facade is crumbling. What was long dismissed as a "conspiracy theory" has now been officially confirmed by impressive Senate investigations : The US health authorities FDA and CDC not only failed, they actively lied to feign the safety of their mRNA experiments. As the Midwestern Doctor reveals in his comprehensive analysis , safety warnings were suppressed, data manipulated, and whistleblowers silenced to maintain the "vaccine" marching orders. The core of the revelations stems from investigations by Senator Ron Johnson and internal FDA and CDC documents. As early as spring 2021, high-ranking officials knew that the new injections could lead to serious side effects such as myocarditis. Instead of transparently informing the public, a deliberate strategy of downplaying the risks was chosen. "We mustn't alarm people," was the motto.

The statistical fallacy: When authorities invent their own reality

Faced with a tsunami of vaccine injuries that could no longer be ignored, the authorities resorted to a perfidious statistical trick: Instead of testing the "vaccine" against a placebo—which would have revealed the true extent of the harm—they simply compared Moderna's injury rate with that of Pfizer. Since both products were equally toxic, they were summarily declared "safe." The so-called Proportional Reporting Ratio (PRR) ensured that even massive warning signs were dismissed as "not unusual." The V-safe system, which showed significantly higher injury rates, was simply ignored. As one witness testified before the Senate, the authorities were "not just blind—they weren't even looking." This wasn't failure; it was treason.

When a senior FDA analyst, Dr. Szarfman, uncovered this manipulation and suggested comparing the data with safer control groups, she was isolated and silenced by her own superiors, including the notorious Dr. Peter Marks. Her data-mining project, which clearly linked 45 different diseases—from myocarditis to strokes—to the mRNA injections, was suppressed. Marks even warned internally that her data could fuel "anti-vaxxer rhetoric."

As early as February 2021, Israel reported cases of myocarditis following the Pfizer vaccine injection in young people to the CDC. By May 2021, there were clear indications that boys aged 16-17 and 18-24 were particularly affected. The authorities did not react with warnings or a halt to the vaccine – but with a cover-up. The truth was not allowed to come to light. Instead, the public was reassured with phrases like "extremely rare" and "the benefits far outweigh the risks" – while at the same time children as young as six months were being vaccinated.

This is precisely where the scandal becomes particularly insidious. Healthy children had a vanishingly small risk of becoming seriously ill with COVID – the mortality rate was practically zero. Nevertheless, they were subjected to massive pressure worldwide, including in the EU, Germany, and Austria, to get vaccinated.

The same old pattern: always the same stitch.

The Midwestern Doctor convincingly demonstrates that this behavior is nothing new. Even with the polio vaccine in 1955, after its ceremonial approval on April 12 – declared "safe, effective, and potent" – it became clear within days that something had gone terribly wrong. Tens of thousands of cases of paralysis occurred. Officially, everything was blamed on the "Cutter Incident" at one manufacturer. Internally, however, it was known that the problem was systemic. Nevertheless, a cover-up was chosen to avoid jeopardizing the vaccination program. A quote from the files: "As long as it's only one manufacturer, it's considered an outlier. With a second, it becomes a problem with the product itself." This same logic has persisted for decades.

A similar situation occurred with the mercury additive thimerosal. At the infamous Simpsonwood meeting in 2000, CDC and WHO representatives openly discussed how to manipulate a study by Dr. Thomas Verstraeten to eliminate the link to neurological disorders in children. The aim was to avoid "medico-legal findings" and not jeopardize vaccination rates. The data were manipulated until the associations in the published version in 2003 had magically disappeared.

The Institute of Medicine (IOM) put it disarmingly frankly in internal protocols: "The more negatively we portray this, the fewer people will get vaccinated. We're trapped." The priority was never the truth or the safety of citizens, but maintaining faith in vaccination itself.

COVID as the pinnacle of the vaccine religion

The COVID vaccines represented a preliminary peak in this system. Approval standards were relaxed, genuine long-term studies were dispensed with, and the new genetically engineered products were compared only to other vaccines – a classic circular argument that conceals harm. Production problems, contamination with synthetic DNA, and changes in the manufacturing process were ignored or downplayed. At the same time, critical voices were censored, scientists were defamed, and mandatory approval was enforced, even though the data showed early on that the "vaccination" offered neither reliable protection against infection nor against transmission.

Surveys now indicate that between 12 and 20 percent of those vaccinated have suffered health problems. Between 49 and 55 percent of Americans believe that many of the "unexplained" deaths are related to the vaccines. Trust in public health authorities has plummeted dramatically—and rightly so.

The Midwestern Doctor speaks of a "vaccine positive feedback loop": the more harm occurs, the more vehemently it is denied, the more aggressive the demands for mandates and censorship become, which in turn generates more resistance. This pattern has been repeating itself for over two centuries. Vaccination has become a secular religion where doubt is tantamount to heresy.

The chance for change

Precisely because the exaggerations and lies surrounding COVID have become so massive and visible to more and more people, there is now a historic opportunity to break this vicious cycle. Senator Ron Johnson has brought important facts to light with his hearings. It is time for parliaments and independent media in Europe to finally demand a genuine investigation – instead of continuing to turn a blind eye or labeling critics as "conspiracy theorists."

Citizens have a right to the truth. They have a right to know why authorities deliberately downplayed risks, why blinding was used instead of robust surveillance, and why potentially harming millions of people was preferred to even remotely questioning the narrative of "safe and effective vaccination".

The question of why the vast majority of politicians worldwide went along with it also needs to be answered. Including here in our country.
